Is school the be-all and end-all for those funky fresh Rabbits? No! Whether it was chillin' with their buds or cruising the town, the Jack-rabbits grooved to a beat all their own. That green and gold spirit and rich cultural diversity made 1987-88 a truly awesome year!

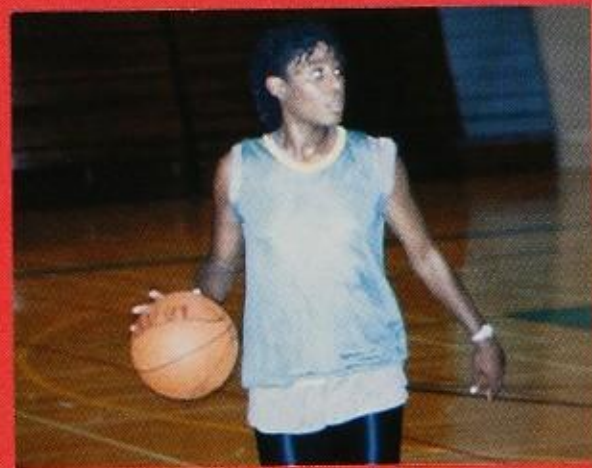

As always, Poly is #1. Football, basketball, and water polo, as well as all the other sports at Poly,

How would you like to rise and shine at 6:00 a.m. knowing your day wouldn't end until 10:00 p.m.? For Poly students, that nightmare was a reality. Some gave up their 6th and 7th periods to go to work, while others concentrated on evenings and weekends. Their jobs ranged from selling clothing at fancy department stores to scooping ice cream at 31 Flavors. Although they sometimes found it hard to give up the homework time, sports, and dates, many seniors, juniors, and sophomores proved that they could manage the extra responsibilities. They worked not only for the money, but for the experience. Those extra responsibilities helped prepare them for the real world, but what did they do with the money they earned? Several dollars were spent on shoes, clothes, concerts, car insurance, and other goodies. Many students felt that working was worth giving up television shows such as "Alf," "The Cosby Show," and "Growing Pains." Those extra bucks gave them the freedom to buy the items they wanted and the money to do the things which were not affordable to them before they began working.

Torie Russell laughs at the price of the jeans.

"Hey man, you sass that cool party Saturday night?"

"Yeah, dude, it was so awesome! I had so much fun, I thought I would explode!"

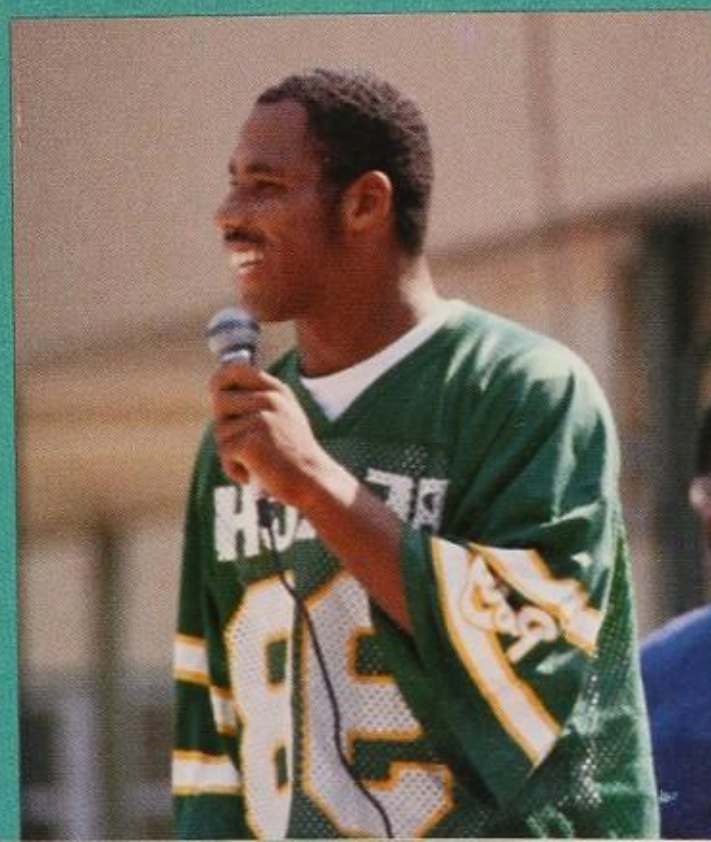

Yes, folks, even during the third quarter doldrums Poly took time out to play. Whether munching through lunch or chatting in class, Rabbits knew how to keep the year happening. Students made the most of their school days by joining a wide assortment of clubs and joking around with Mr. Schuster ("Sancho"). Away from class, the weekend life turned into the wild life as Poly people partied the night away or cheered on the football team. And yet who could possibly be amused without their buds? As Nichon Roberson commented, "School just wouldn't be school without my friends." Just being together was enough to make any Jackrabbit rejoice. Poly folks truly experience the Big Family Fun Life!!

After six tedious weeks of school, school, school, Poly really needed to let its hair down and party! Thus commenced Homecoming Week, an extravaganza of entertainment which heralded the big game with Lakewood. Every day at lunch, the array of fresh activities awaited students. From powder puff football to the mock funeral, a jammin' time was had by all. Finally, Friday, the day of the fun-tastic Faire, morning's work, Poly was transformed into a carnival paradise, and at noon, the fun began. Colorful booths representing Poly's clubs sold tasty foods and other goodies. After stuffing themselves to the gills, the jivin' Jackrabbits got an opportunity to chill and enjoy the stupendous talents of the Lip Sync finalists, Samoan dancers, and other sweet spectacles. All in all, Homecoming was a blast and a half straight to the Top!

Tony Rogers kept a winning tradition with another successful year of Poly North. As Nina Parsons stated, "It was uncomfortable at first, but it led to a great chance of meeting new people!" There were many activities at the camp, such as the trust walk. Dawn Swanson declared, "Yep, I was scared of the trust walk ... at first!" The night hike was eerie, as Marti Winchester stated, "I knew they were messing around on the night hike, but I almost killed one of the counselors." The new Poly sophs had a great time, but they kept in mind the true purpose of the camp: to acquaint the students with one another, to promote friendship, and to learn about the traits, emotions, and goodwill of all the participants. Sasha Mitchell commented, "The counselors were so understanding: I want to be one someday!" Not only did the students make new friends and understand the cultural diversity, they had fun doing it. The campers ate each meal at a different table in order to meet new people.

Poly North . . . A Weekend At The Summit

Daily rap sessions covered topics which helped bring the sophomores together as they strived toward the top.

Poly North campers follow their revered leaders to a long, tiring mountain hike. In spite of the awkward bow, Sheri Denson aims straight at the archery target. Taft Hill lends a helping hand to a "blind" camper on the trust walk.

"Clothes are not a status symbol at Poly. If you wear sweats, nobody calls you a bag lady; if you wear spiked heels, nobody calls you a trollop."

-melissa feinberg

Poly style reached a pinnacle with bold statements in trends and fashion. Friendship bracelets were a great fad that showed Poly Pride in being together.

The hottest ways to get to school were to jam your way over on your skateboard or to cram into your friend's car. But the coolest way was to hop on a red Honda Elite scooter, turn up your L.L. Cool J, and coast around the city.

Regal Rabbits went for the sleek and elegant look as they partied away another year. Except, of course, when they sat out in front of Music Plus for Depeche Mode and U2 tickets! There was a great trend for comfortable but stylish clothes, with mini-skirts, denim, and long hair all making a comeback. However, on exam days, stressed students bummed out with battered sweats as the garment of choice. As fads came and went, the heart of Poly remained sharp, pressed, and FRESH!

PARTY

Hey all you Poly people out there, here's the scoop! Poly's favorite entertainers were some of the most diverse ever, and none were selected in more than one category. The fab Cosby Show, Bill Cosby's baby, took first place hands-down against Growing Pains. Spike Lee's new musical film "School Daze," a portrayal of campus life at an all-black college, barely beat out "Fatal Attraction" for the title of favorite movie. The favorite actor and actress were respectively: Eddie Murphy and the beautiful Lisa Bonet. In the music department, Michael Jackson's BAD album was "good" enough to capture Poly's hearts. One of the first of two new groups was Salt 'n Pepa pushing their new video "Push It" to the number one spot. The second new group, The Deal, put "Two Occasions" on top. You too may feel happy when you hear that U2, who won a Grammy for Best Rock Performance by a group made it as the number one group on the Poly campus, with Salt 'n Pepa and The Deal close behind. For the third year in a row, Whitney Houston, the queen of pop who won a Grammy for Best Female Pop Vocal, held the spot of favorite solo artist. And the big surprise of the year was Jesse Jackson (it was thought that Bush would win), your favorite choice for president; he left all other candidates in the dust, including Wally George and Pee Wee Herman. Well guys and gals of this fab campus, this has been another great year of your choices of what's up at Poly High.

Thanks!

What a year for events! The Centennial of Long Beach, the fifteenth Winter Olympics in Calgary, Alberta, Canada, the 1988 presidential election, the drug controversy in Panama, and much, much more.

With Long Beach's 100th birthday came the first D.A.R.E. Rally followed by a parade held in downtown Long Beach. The 10K run celebrated the opening of the new bike path that goes through the heart of Long Beach. And if Long Beach's centennial wasn't earth-shaking enough, remember our "little quake" on October 1? Luckily, Poly suffered no serious damages, and school resumed within 3 hours.

December finally brought Mikhail Gorbachev to America for the U.S.-Soviet Arms Talks and the INF Treaty was signed.

As 1988 rolled around, election year began. It had a numerous amount of Democrats running with a sprinkling of Republicans for flavor. The big contenders were Vice President George Bush (Rep.) and Gov. Michael Dukakis (Dem.). As usual, the primaries began in New Hampshire and then went on to Iowa. Voter registration on campus increased student political awareness.

Noriega, the big man from Panama, created controversy with his drug dealings. Also gaining headlines from Central America was the decision by Congress concerning Contra aid. There will be no more money, at least for now, because the legislators refused to allot $36 million more to the rebels. However, some US dollars were spent supporting a 3,200-man expeditionary force in Honduras.

Of course, we've had our share of scandals concerning televangelists. Jimmy Swaggart and Pat Robertson joined Jim Bakker in the ranks of the crazy clergy.

From the scandals of evangelists to the "Wide World of Sports", from presidents-to-be to dictators-to-be-no-more, this has been a year full of interesting news. As 1989 rolls around, we will be watching for a new president and better relations with the Soviets and the rest of the world. It seems, perhaps, that good times are here again!

If you walked up to a Poly student and asked what the 1987-88 year was like, the answer would probably be "Aaarrggghh!!" It was especially tough for Poly PACE students, with seniors facing new requirements for college, juniors taking all the college entrance exams, and the sophomores confronted with just about everything else. PACE sophomores also had to deal with Mr. Garretson's AP classes and Mrs. O'Donnell's chemistry class. Achievement tests and SAT Prep classes were among the exciting activities that juniors contended with toward the end of the year. Junior Nina Gelb says, "I'm hoping that all the hard work I've done will be worth it next year." The PACE seniors entered the year with college preparations and the prospect of a tumultuous nine months in room 147. Senior Brian Fisk comments, "Senioritis. Folger's coffee. I want it all!!" But as the year ended, each and every PACE student can say, "It was worth it."

The highlight of CIC traditionally has been the visit of Mr. George Takei (Sulu from the original "Star Trek" series and movies). His presentations encourage students to "aim for the stars in education, and keeps us updated on new "Star Trek" movies." Mr. Takei urges students to capitalize on their resources and "boldly go where no one has gone before."

Enthusiasm overwhelms all of the students in Russian class.

As the program's sixth year burst forth into full throttle, CIC students were more enthusiastic than ever. As Monica Woodward stated, "CIC helps us to become prepared for college. We are put into a situation where we have to mature at a quicker rate so we can be successful in our classes. We also have a more branched-out curriculum." CIC (Center for International Commerce) has many unique required classes such as computer math, accounting, and international marketing. These subjects help students to enter the job market immediately after graduation. But these courses wouldn't be as rewarding without the help of well-oiled teachers like Ms. Miller, Mr. Wright, Ms. Skuor, or Mr. Herrick, who bring life to the subjects they teach. The program also has some new additions to the teaching staff. With such dedication from the staff and students, CIC will remain a strong force in preparing students for careers in business.

The JROTC performed in the D.A.R.E. Rally in October of '87 and in other community functions. In the past two years they have been noted with "Gold Star" classification awards for their exceptional performance in all areas of the JROTC Program. This year's class expected to earn the highest awards once again.

JROTC students agreed that the annual Military Ball was the big payoff. Senior Francine Tolliver claimed that hard work is life's great reward: "What you get out of it depends on what you put into it." Many students enlist in the military as a result of their high school experiences in the JROTC. Junior Mary Mejorada comments, "Following orders takes dedication."

There were several changes in every aspect of the newspaper. The Long Beach Centennial Celebration created a wealth of information for articles about local lore and Polytechnic history. Some other changes included switching to computerized print material, which achieved an enhanced look for the product, and including honest and controversial articles such as the Briar Patch, an editorial column initiated by Kerim Aydin. With the help of long-term sub, Kata O'Bannon, the cub paper, Poly Extra, was launched. The paper, produced by the first-year journalism class, included spicy stories dealing with teen pregnancy and alcoholism. The features were factual and stirred the Poly student body.

CAERULEA STAFF 1988

"Does anyone know where the master plans are?"

"Uh, Christie, Josh, could you come here a moment?"

"Where are the master plans?"

"What is the point size for body copy?"

"Excuse me, where are the master plans?"

I opened the door and these words hit me like a slap in the face. I had never realized how chaotic yearbook staff was. I had always been caught up in the action from the word go, designing layouts, correcting mistakes, writing copy, and generally trying to keep the morale and production levels up. But don't get me wrong, I love this job. Room 132 is my home and Caerulea staff is my family. A close camaraderie was formed out of especially hard deadlines and extremely comedic times.

Deadlines separated the most dedicated staffers from the people who were just too busy to dedicate their days and nights to yearbook outside of class. On most deadlines, staffers stayed after school until 4:30 or 5, while others stayed past 6:00 p.m. I appreciated all sacrifices of time, whether during or outside of school hours. I feel that staffers gave 110% of themselves.

The staff was fairly large, with 10 editors, 4 photographers and 12 staff members. Of these 26 staff members, 21 were "babies", people who were on staff for the first time. With such an inexperienced class, the editors and advisor found a majority of their time spent teaching production techniques.

But we had our fun, too, putting up with California Graffiti, visits from Highlife staff, Yaz, another picture of Rachael Leatherman, Post-It Notes, Tommy's, not knowing whose Coke is whose, and "clean up!" — C.M.

Lights, Camera, Action! Drama students made the play, Death Takes a Holiday, a success. The student body proved its support by attending the performance and cheering on the stage-struck Thespians. Overtime and hard work paid off. They also kept busy working on skits, scenes, monologues, and theatrical children's stories. The drama class also presented selected children's stories at Burnett Elementary School.

The students felt that drama helped them to relieve their problems and forget everything surrounding them. "At first, I just wanted to try it out, but then I liked it and stayed," Anna Makridis commented. Even the amateur actors acquired the knowledge of expressing themselves and revealing their emotions. When the curtain dropped and the make-up came off, the Thespians faced life with new experiences gained from characters they played.

Shawn Hubbard sets up the stage and props for another excellent Poly production.

Stage Crew may seem a breeze, but they work very hard for each show. Building sets, designing props, and controlling the lights are their major duties. "We make theater magic," Gathe declared. When one show ends, the group starts immediately making another setting. The crew was devastated at the sight of their "art" being torn down so quickly after completion. The class also gained great experience by visiting other stage crews and observing their sets. Without Stage Crew, the show simply would not go on.

Introducing the the 1987-88 Poly Orchestra.

Thunderous applause filled the LBCC concert hall as the Orchestra rested its instruments for the night. Honored with the highest rating, Superior, and invited to play for the Calif. Music Educators Association, our Orchestra bragged of many talented musicians. Jackrabbits dominated All-City Orchestra and Cynthia Grinstead and Billy Briggs were selected as All-City Soloists.

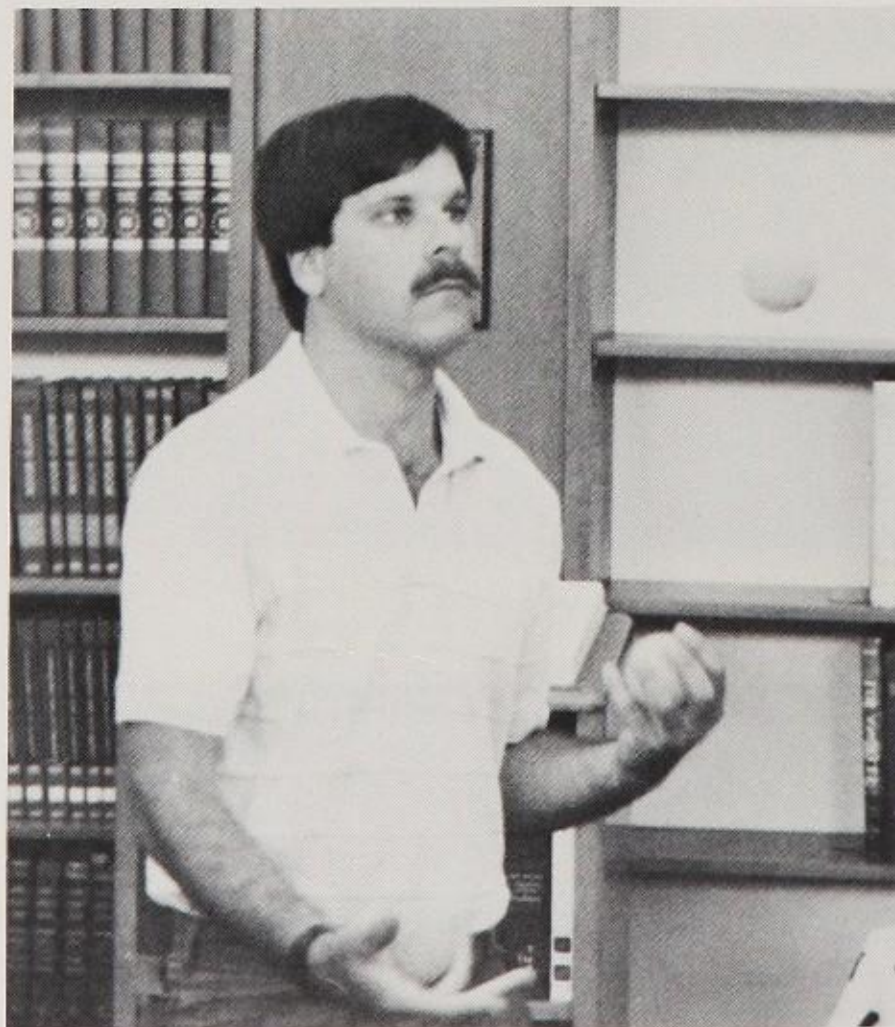

Having a large membership, the Orchestra was able to play tougher pieces. Committed to 3 rehearsals before every concert on Wednesday nights, and with 6th period practices, Jackrabbits sharpened their skills. The strive for excellence showed with the state's top chamber trio of Briggs, Grinstead, and Elaine Ono, and the greatly improved Symphonic Winds. Again, Mr. Osman led the talented groups with dedication as they took their music to the limit.

If you wanted to hear the song, "Le Jazz Hot," you could have tuned into Poly's 1987-1988 Jazz Bands. This was the fifth year for Band Director Andrew Osman. Practicing hard during seventh period each day, they prepared for their performance and the Sounds '88 Concert, their most important performance. They also played at the La Mirada Jazz Festival, and the Fullerton College Jazz Festival. With instruments such as the saxophone, trumpet, trombone, bass, and piano, the 18 Jazz I, and 14 Jazz II members played hard. Roger Vermuelen and Karl Soukup led with trumpets, with Ben Abrahamse on trombone and Cedric Johnson as sax player also playing well during the year. The swing, Latin, and Funk Jazz Tunes were the bulk of music types played by the band.

The 1987-88 Concert Choir group all spiffed up.

As the lights dimmed, a quiet hush swept over the audience. The spotlights flushed on and the choir was ready to show once again their ability to pull off very difficult "legit" choir pieces. The 1987-88 Concert Choir and the Advanced A Capella Choir were better than ever. "I'm really emphasizing sight singing and theory in our beginning concert choir. They are going to be excellent musicians next year. The A Capella Choir is only in its 2nd year and I'm very encouraged. We're mostly working on the individual voice and group sound. Next year, all I can say is that you'd better watch out!" Mr. Lapierre said of his two "legit" groups. The Concert Choir and A Capella Choir also performed in Poly's excellent show, SOUNDS. A Capella Choir took high scores at the Long Beach City College Festival. Poly once again excelled in music and has only to look forward to a brighter future.

A Capella Choir: All robed up and ready to roar.

"Being a sophomore in the A Capella Choir is a tough task. When you're in an advanced group, so much more is expected of you. When you have to get up in front of the whole class and sing ... Well, how would you feel!?"

Aah Du Bop! If you popped in to see Vocal Jazz I or II rehearse, then you heard these sounds. In reviving the '70's, these two talented groups performed their own rendition of the "Time Warp" at the homecoming game. Vocal Jazz II proved that they were going to the top with their talent and willingness to perform. For the second year, Vocal Jazz I was invited to participate at the California Music Educator's Association's Annual Conference in Los Angeles. They also presented an astounding performance at the Reno Jazz Festival in Nevada. Their success is due to the hard work of the singers and Mr. Arthur Lapierre. With Ms. Marla Devich, accompanist, he prepared the two groups for the many festivals in which they competed. Sounds '88, performed in April, was the biggest production. A smashing success not only described these performances, but also those outstanding groups.

WHIZ, WIT, AND WRITS

What do an elite group of fifteen PACE seniors have in common? They make up the National Merit Scholarship semifinalists at Poly High. Previous years have produced three, sometimes four of these whiz kids. However, it was the Class of '88 that broke all previous records.

To become a scholarship semifinalist one must first be eligible as a commended student. Sound easy? . . . Not quite. National Merit Scholarship commended students scored in the 99th percentile on their PSAT tests. Poly had 37 of them, another incredible figure. The semifinalists are among 50,000 seniors nationwide who could win thousand-dollar scholarships for their inevitable college careers.

The 1988 National Merit Scholarship semifinalists from Poly High include: Michael Simon, Melissa Feinberg, Gwen Larsen, Teri Hudson, John Kim, Shiloah Driscoll, Melanie Feinberg, Tae Song, Scott Crawford, Jinha Park, Steven Purucker, Larry Schwimmer, Scott Wilkosz, Billy Briggs, and Matt Smith.

The Poly defense team prepares to go head to head against the prosecution on the assault trial.

The California Mock Trial Program is a program where students are given the opportunity to become tomorrow's law and order. Presented with a hypothetical case, the team presented either a prosecution or a defense. Each team was made up of attorneys, witnesses, court clerks, and bailiffs.

The trials took place at the Los Angeles County Civil Courthouse and were presided over by actual state judges. Poly competed against several other schools during the elimination contest. Pete Blagaich, who has coached the Poly team for a plethora of years, feels that the team has been getting stronger each passing day. "Out of 50 schools, we've made the quarterfinals three years in a row. Next year, we can't lose!"

Senior Brian Walsh, on the other hand, was not as enthusiastic because it was his last year. "I wish I had one more year, but I'm glad that I've had the chance to be involved in such an enriching program for three years."

Poly was led by prosecuting attorneys John Kim, Brian Walsh, Mike Farhang, and defense attorneys Bob Datta, Adreeiane Roy, and Joshua Lowenthal.

Speech and Debate already had a big plus kicking off the year with returning varsity competitors, Steve Lerner, Eric Anderson, and Mike Farhang. In addition, strong novice competitors, Brian Walsh, Mike Kushner, Larry Schwimmer, Celeste Burton, and Joshua Lowenthal, brought many tournament victories to Poly.

The Poly Speech and Debate program enjoyed its first year of financial support from the Boosters' Club. The year began with Mike Farhang's victory in the Bill of Rights Commemoration Committee speech contest. Mike won $1,000 for himself and "The best part about speech and debate is that it is completely spontaneous. Nobody, and I mean nobody, can be 100% ready to answer every question."

-celeste burton

$1,000 for Poly High in the event sponsored by Coast Savings Bank. "The Bill of Rights play such a crucial role in the molding of American society," Mike stated. "I always feel that it is important to support such pieces of democracy by speaking out in favor of them."

Eugene Gillam again served as advisor/sponsor. "I have been very impressed by the enthusiasm of the students," he commented. "Sometimes I will find them all arguing over a controversial topic and it winds up becoming one mass debate!" No argument about it, Poly Debate celebrated a first place year.

BOOSTER

Booster Board likes to work hard, but loves to give.

Faithful and diligent PCIC members take it to the top.

T rue spirit is a quality that every Poly Jackrabbit shares. This, of course, includes the adult support groups: PTA, Poly Community Interracial Council, and the Booster Board. These special associations gave financial support and supervision to Polytechnic High School. They tightened the relationships between students, faculty, the community, and the Board of Education. The PTA board, whose main purpose involved fundraising activities, supported Poly students financially. These services included providing glasses, clothing, and other essentials. Booster Board was mainly concerned with fundraisers to support extra curricular activities, like athletic teams and the debate team. Each month the newsletter, Jack Rabbit Tales, recaps the events of the school and provides information on upcoming events. The Poly Community Interracial Council contributed to the decision making at Poly. They were not involved in any fundraising activities, but instead relayed the question, comments, and concerns of the Poly Community.

Another great year with PTA, the group which always leads the way!

munity to the Board of Education. Complimenting all three groups, Ms. Moore explained, "They are wonderful people who make this school such a special place". Due to their fantastic assistance, we agree with Ms. Moore and thank these groups for their continued support of Poly High School pursuit of excellence.

PTA and Boosters have their spirit high as they sell items during the Poly Intercultural Faire.

The Poly Beach Club is a high-spirited, organized, and ambitious club. Established in early October, the group is geared toward progression. The club promotes good student to student relations as well as student-community ties. It's sole purpose is to revive the joys that a beach can bring and to have a jammin'-fun time.

The Samoan Club is an organization of students representing and introducing the different traditions and customs of the South Pacific Islands. The club encourages others to join and participated in events such as the Samoan/Polynesian dances, and made home-cooked foods such as pisupo. It regularly takes part in activities within the school and community. Pictured: Martha Lefotu, Sally Mariner, and Frances Patl.

The Japanese Club raises money each year to pay for the expenses of students who come here from Japan. They take them to places such as Disneyland, Medieval Times, and Griffith Park Observatory. It is a lot of hard work planning and organizing, but those smiles are worth it!

POLY NORTH SR. COUNSELORS JONATHANS RACQUET

What do all these clubs have in common? Fun! Fun! Fun! While the Chemistry Club mixes formulas and explodes the lab, Jonathan members are out there hip-hip-hurrying in their Jackrabbit suits for their #1 team. While Samoan Club members are wearing their "ie" and performing the dance numbers, Poly Beach Club is, of course, partyin' on the beach. While the Poly North Sr. Counselors are doing skits for the sophomores at camp, the Racquet Club is smashing balls with mighty strength. Meanwhile, Japanese Club is conjugating verbs while eating sushi.

The Poly North Human Relations Program at Camp Oakes was very successful. Well-qualified senior counselors, chosen out of about 120 applicants, provided constructive leadership for the sophomores and acted as role models during the four fall weekend camps directed by Mr. Tony Rogers.

DANCE AMNESTY INTERNATIONAL RUSSIAN

Motivated! That's one way to describe Poly students as they became organized and helped their environment. Being active in clubs was the way to go. Clubs such as Russian, AFS, and Asian-Am served as examples of Poly's ethnic diversity. Amnesty International worked to free political prisoners while Alpha Chi debated today's "hot topics." Of the most popular and fastest growing clubs at Poly were two new groups, Club Dread, and Dance. Members devoted themselves to examining dance and music and helping the arts to flourish at Poly.

Dance class, one of Poly's new offerings, quickly became a popular and exciting club. Headed by Karen Kautz, also a professional dance instructor at LBCC, the dancers were educated in aerobics, jazz, and modern dance. The Spring Production provided the club with an opportunity to display their talents and entertain the Poly community.

Club Reggae was open to everyone who has a fervor for Reggae music. By exploring Jamaican music from the past to the present, the club allowed time for reggae listeners to unite and converse about upcoming concerts and other events in the reggae world. Song lyrics were analyzed to find what message each song was trying to project, whether it was peace, love, brotherhood, unity, or equality.

Alpha Chi was the service club that spent four hours diligently cleaning the trophy case. At their meetings they had open discussions called "student forums" that were used to debate current events. KEY FLYNN'S FROGS BLACK ONYX SR. SENATE

TOO COOL

Key Club is one of the largest organizations on Poly's campus. It is open to any boy with a GPA of 3.0 or higher. This year's group was led by Fall officers Josh Lowenthal, Matt Jay, Jinha Park, Alex Cherin, and Thad Balkman, and the club boasted over fifty members. Key participated in many service projects and activities, including the Daisy Lane Christmas Parade and the CRI Shoreline Half Marathon. Key Club was also the second-best contributor to the canned food drive, behind arch-rival, Portia.

Black Onyx serves to foster brotherhood and to promote good will in our community. Ms. Sheila Dunn is the advisor of this strong organization.

Senior Senate is the primary legislative body of the senior class. They displayed their pride in the class of 1988 by devoting their time and effort to fundraising for and organizing the Senior Prom, which was held in May at the Irvine Marriott. Hall, Class of '88!

CAPRICE SKI CSF-NHS

Scholarships, anyone? The National Honor Society, in league with the California Scholarship Federation, provides monetary awards to deserving members.

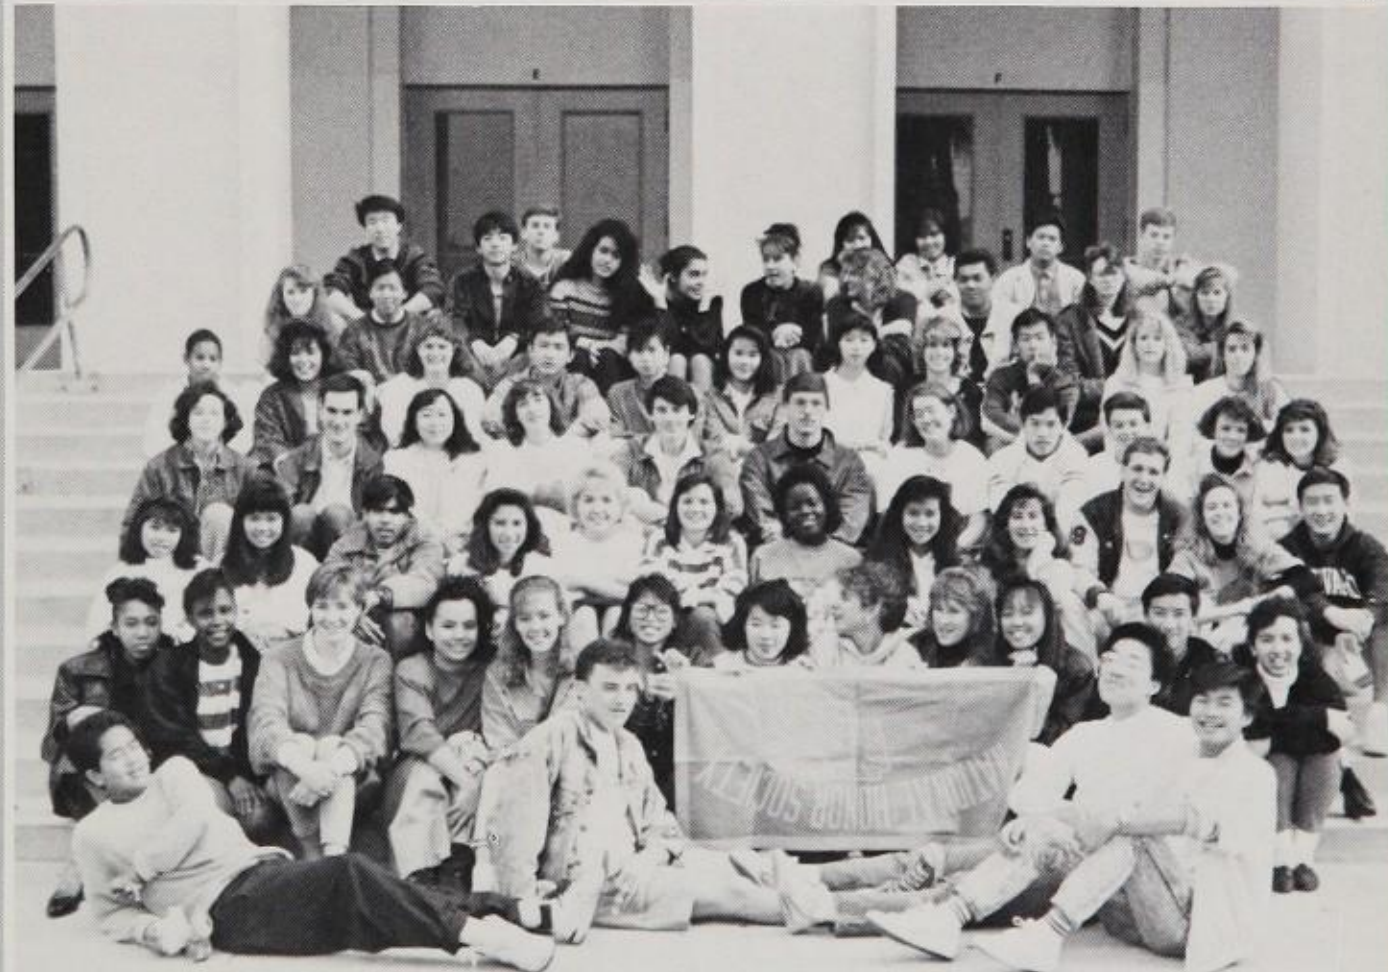

Speaking of money, the Senior Senate lives for it. The first and foremost purpose of this group is to raise money for the Promotional Dance by way of baked goods and pizza sales.

Money played a major role in the activities and successes of these two organizations — proof positive that Poly High stands as a model of capitalism at work.

CAPRICE Welfare Club has been a service organization at Poly for many years. Their activities in 1987-88 included decorating floats for the Rose Parade. Row 1: W. Coke, T. Bear, C. Ashley, V. Prunetti. Row 2: A. Valiente, W. Ngo, J. Studson, P. Hambrick. Row 3: D. Chap, K. Mills, M. Campbell, Y. Tran, J. Parker.

Snow enthusiasts found a home in Ski Club, an organization devoted to that chilly sport. In addition to having technical discussions about poles, bindings, and those cute little mammals called "ski bunnies", ski clubbers were able to make several excursions to the splendid slopes of California.

CSF/NHS is an honor society whose members have a 3.0 GPA and/or 10 CSF points on their semester report cards. The members of CSF/NHS are not only bright but service-minded, volunteering their time to such products as the D.A.R.E. Rally and Christmas Caroling. The club was led by Fall President Jinha Park and Spring President Raymond Vergel de Dios.

PHYSICS EASTERN SUN FBLA

The Future Business Leaders of America are establishing themselves as a major organization. To develop leadership abilities and an understanding of today's business world, members have attended conferences such as the one at Hart High School, where they listened to seminars about competitive events, member recruitment, and group cooperation.

Leadership abilities are also important to the Young Educators of America. This is a new club aimed toward the encouragement of student interest in the teaching profession. As stated by sponsor Miss Miller, "We came, we saw, we educated."

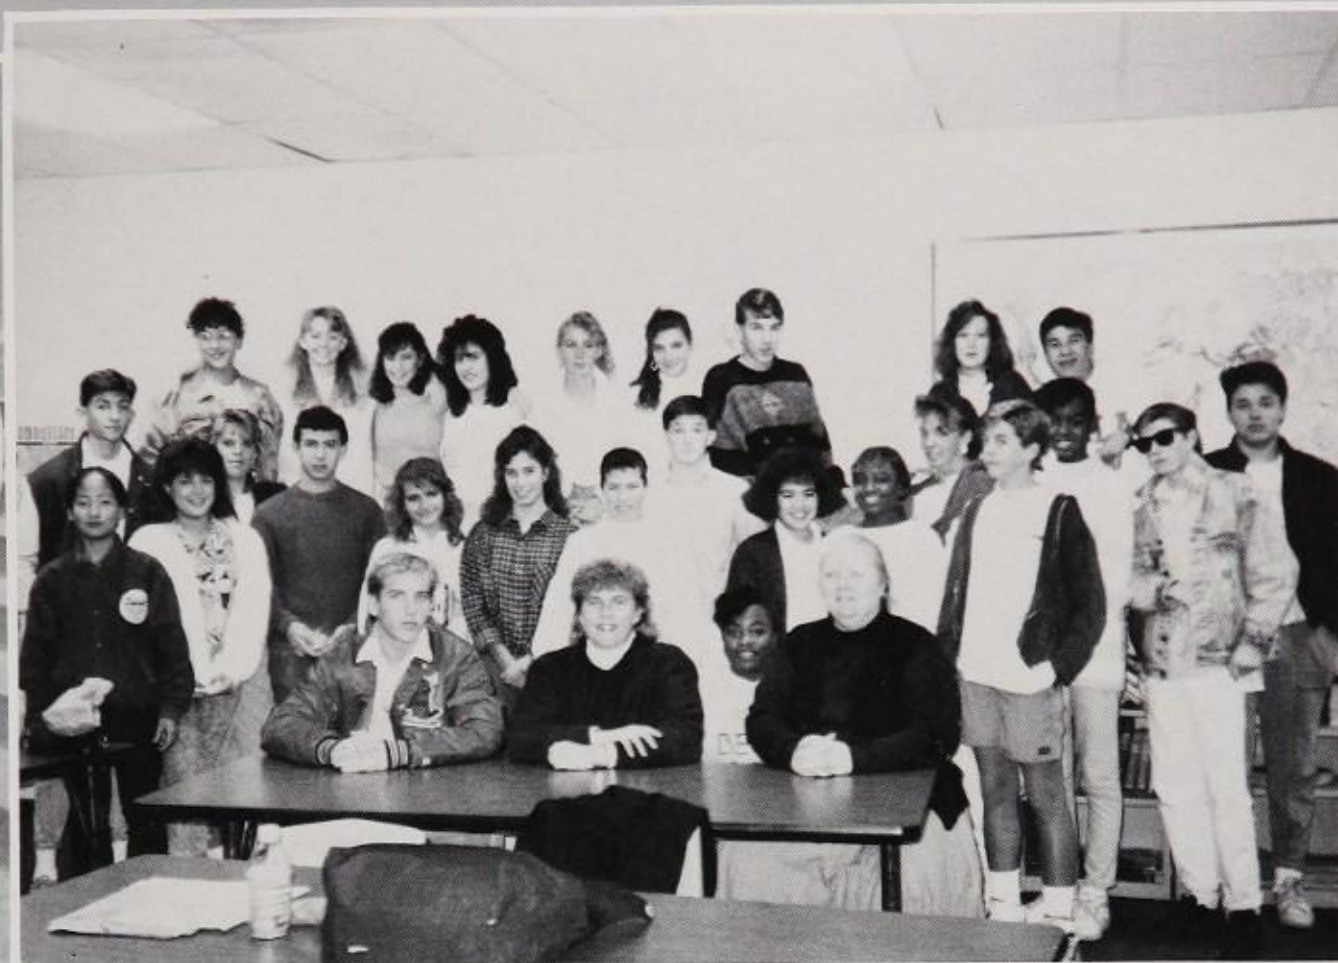

A quantum leap into the future. This year's activities included trips to the California Museum of Science and Industry and Aerospace, USClence and Engineering Day at USC, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, the Griffith Observatory and Laserium, as well as the Physics Olympics on the Poly campus. Physics — This is where the fun starts!

The Eastern Sun Club is a new club at Poly this year. Sponsored by Ms. Ilene Trestler, the club attracted about 45 members during the first semester. Membership is extended to Chinese-American students with a 3.0 GPA or above. Eastern Sun participated in the D.A.R.E. Rally and other service projects. Their goal? To contribute their share of services to the community.

YEA was a new club this year formed for the purpose of encouraging students to follow the noblest profession of all, teaching. Sponsored by Ms. Miller, members were counseled in how to achieve their occupational dream and given tutoring tips. The future keepers of the flame of education were unanimous in their enthusiasm for the new organization, giving it a big A+.

Computer Club members — Row 1: Allireza Fallahi, Arvin Taneja. Row 2: Mandhir Singh, Scott Tenhoff, Carlos Munoz. Computers is an exciting club based on logic rationality and algorithms. Members not only learn about computers and programming, but make lifelong friends with common interests. In addition, computer clubbers can play games if they're good.

The enthusiasm of the junior class was evident at each Jr. Senate meeting. The class of 1989 was a hardworking class with a fantastic prom as the goal. Singing and dancing took flight. Poly Phi Dapper made this possible through many dedicated hours spent organizing and presenting Poly's first successful Sock-Hop. Proceeds allowed the basketball team to step in time to Hawaii.

Choral Club sky-rocketed with up to 50 performances. Their Christmas carolers were in high demand and entertained thousands.

Both groups sacrificed personal time to entertain both the student body and the community.

DECA is an exciting, challenging club. Its members learned marketing skills at the same time as they made lifetime friends from across the U.S. This club participated in four conferences during the 1987-88 school year. At the conferences, they competed against students from other schools for trophies and scholarships.

STUFF

Swingin' and groovin' to the Poly beat, Song and Flag kept up the enthusiastic spirits of Poly High. Song and Flagsters always displayed their special 'Rabbit groove.

To prove their dedication, Song and Flagsters not only endured exhausting practices after school, but they also took time out of their summer for cheer-leading camp.

Not only did they work hard together, they also played hard together. "We sleep, eat, and live Song and Flag," said Missy Campbell.

"Getting the crowd into a spirited mood is not an easy job!" exclaimed Tracey Nichols; however, Missy and Tracey make a tough job look fun as they wave their flags high at a pre-game football rally on a Friday afternoon.

Angelique and Missy jump for joy as the Poly team scores yet another touchdown. "When Poly scores it's just impossible to hold in your excitement. You just have to let it out!" exclaimed Missy Campbell.

Showing her deep concentration, Quarnetta Jones keeps the beat at noon rally. "Keeping your concentration at rallies and football games is always hard to do. There are so many things going on around you!" Quarneetta Jones exclaimed.

Stephanie Johnson shows her Poly Pride on her way to the rally stage. Stephanie keeps her pride even through embarrassing moments. "At the Milk Bowl, I was standing on my stool and all of a sudden I fell off!" she said.

Showing her peppy pepster side, Eileen Gerona cheers to an enthusiastic Poly crowd. Eileen shows that being peppy is not always a simple task. "At the Banning game, it was so hot, we could hardly smile. But we always managed!"

Missy Campbell and Angelique Jones are overcome by the excitement of a great Poly game. "We always get so emotional when Poly scores a touchdown. Everyone can feel our Poly pride!" exclaimed Jones.

The girls show their togetherness on the "Day of Disaster." "When the earthquake hit we were all so scared, but even through hard times we stick together," commented a relieved Sandra Quon.

ROWDY RABBITS THESPIANS SOPH. SENATE

Poly-clubs are the ultimate exponent of freshness. For example, take a gander at those ragin' Rowdy Rabbits. A seventeen-year-old combination of cheering squad and welfare club, the Rowdy Rabbits led the Nov. 13 Jordan Rally. The Poly Thespians encouraged the dramatic arts. Club Latino focused on Hispanic culture and traditions. Sr. Women's promoted unity. Lives were saved by the blood donated by Red Cross. Soph Senate raised funds for the Prom of 1990. Finally, Peer Counseling reached out to comfort fellow students in times of trouble. Such diversity, such dedication!

Sophomore Senate showed that they could hang with the "upper class" clubs any time. They did a fine job of collecting money in preparation for their promotional dance, using the traditional methods of candy sales and Homecoming and Inter-cultural Faire booths to give themselves a strong jump on the 1990 prom. It's only two years away, folks!

Drama Club was perhaps the most creative group at Poly, but then again, that is their job. The Thespians performed various special performances, including a first-ever production of "Crimes of the Heart," held on Sunday, February 7, 1988. These actors embodied Shakespeare's famous statement, "The play's the thing."

Pump the beat, pump the beat, the words yelled out by the Long Beach Poly Band to their drumline as they marched in another rowdy rally. This signalled that the '87-'88 school year promised to be as exciting as the year before.

The band showed its performances to be better than ever. With few returning seniors, the band was called "young". Despite the inexperience, the group showed their confidence and talent in morning rehearsals. Through the direction of Mr. Andy Osman, the band demonstrated their success and determination each show.

Besides taking part in annual school events, such as the Milk Bowl and the Band Spectacular, the band shared their talent with the community by taking part in special events in Long Beach. The United Way's kickoff campaign and "The Dare To Say No To Drugs" Rally helped show not only their talent, but their Poly pride.

With all these, plus the exciting halftimes and rallies, the Long Beach Poly '87-'88 Marching Band jammed as the beat went on.

Portia, the sister club of Key, is one of the largest organizations on campus, with over sixty members. The club took part in many service projects, including a Halloween Haunted House for children and the DARE Rally. But the coup de grace for Portia was their stunning upset of Key in the canned food drive. The girls brought in over two tons of food and received a Favor Day from their brother club for their efforts. As Fall President, Melissa Feinberg declared, "We were very fresh!"

Once again, the Explorer Scouts of Long Beach sponsored surf teams from the Long Beach area. These teams competed against each other between January and May. The meets were held in the Huntington Beach area and were sponsored by the Cavalry Chapel Surfing Association. Poly Surf Club provided twelve surfers and one body boarder at each meet. The group was sponsored by Mr. Jaso.

VIETNAMESE STUDENT COMMISSION

Student Commission braved seas of red tape in guiding the student body through the rigors of '88. ASB Presidents Steve Holtz and Jinha Park provided the vigorous and responsible leadership necessary to conquer such overwhelming tasks as planning Poly's first winter semi-formal in years. Enthusiasm ran high among members. As Jean Kim exclaimed, "I love it! It's such a joyful combination of mature guidance and youthful vitality. I give it a 10!" Ray Vergel de Dios commented a bit more cynically, "Bureaucracy breeds bureaucracy ... that's why I'm in here."

Taking over for Mr. Alexander, he now handles the responsibility of coordinating student activities. His changes in the activities program have earned him the rep of a "mover and shaker", but he reflects on the year as being a learning experience for both the students and himself.

KICK OFF 87

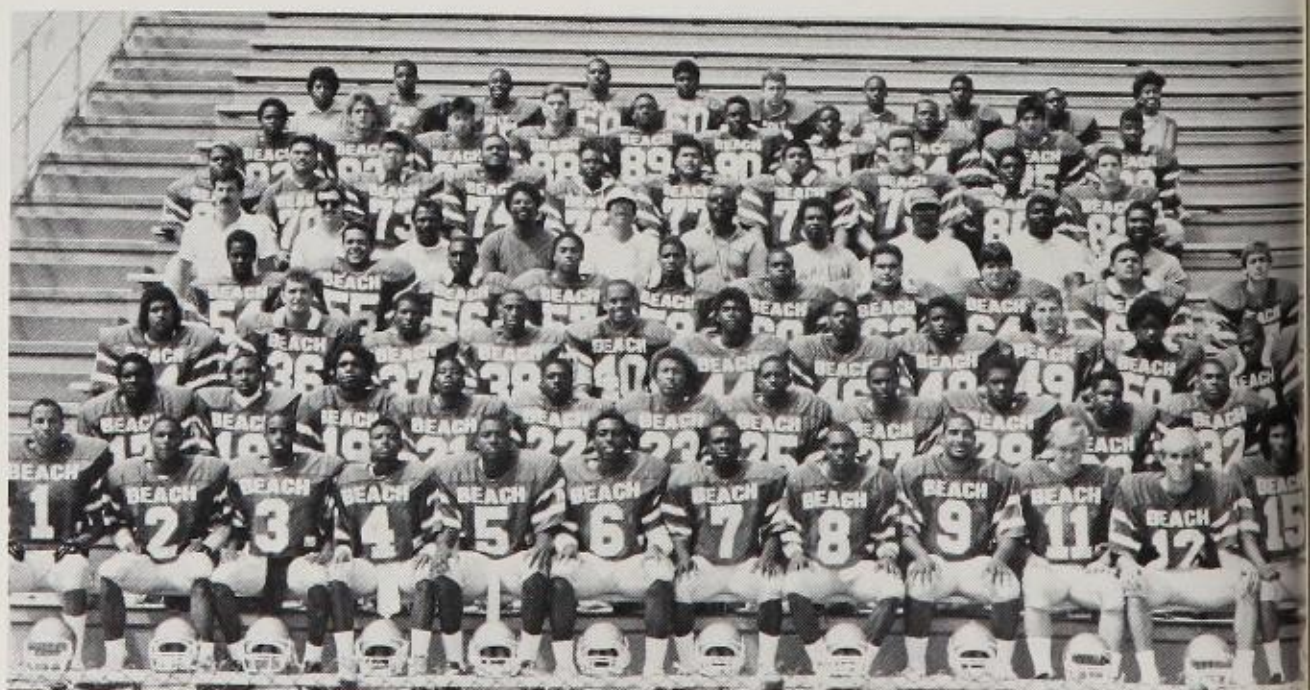

Offensive! No, not irritating, but the opposite of defensive. Both units worked hard to make our team a complete driving force. Poly's offense, coached by Thomas Whiting, had determination, skill, and few injuries. Due to their honed techniques, offense sustained less injuries than defense. Their four hour practices involved conditioning and repetition of key plays. The players believed in Poly, but belief alone was not enough to make them the best; their playing had to remain consistent. Their first games, Bishop Amat and Oxnard, were difficult because they went against tough teams with an inexperienced squad. However, the Jackrabbits sprang back as always. The victories against Mater Dei, Lakewood, Millikan, and our arch-rival, Wilson, were shows of excellent offensive maneuvering. "The key," according Whiting, "was playing people in the right spots."

When the players weren't playing or practicing, they were given the opportunity to use the study hall in Poly's cafeteria as a way of perpetuating the slogan, "Home of Scholars and Champions." Many players learned from their experiences. Though the academics started out a bit rough, players eventually learned to budget their time and for some, the results were positive.

Poly's winning football tradition continued as captains Marquez Pope and Rufus Young led the team to their 8th consecutive Moore League Victory. "It was predominately a junior football team, but it was a good year for us," said co-head coach Jerry Jaso. A great deal of effort went into earning the Moore league title. All summer the team met twice a day to work with weights and 2-3 nights a week to play in Passing League games. "With a stupendous 5-0 league record, all the hard work paid off," said Rocky Williamson. However, Many injuries plagued the team. Poly's best deensive player, Danianke Smith, went down with a broken leg during the Fountain Valley game. Marquez Pope, Marcellus Elder, and Michael Wall picked up the slack after Smith's injury. Poly lost Tyae Burford in the last league game with a knee injury. In addition, Michael Wall's broken foot and Earl Oliver's sprained ankle severed the team's defensive line. After Moore league, Poly awaited their 1st playoff game with Mater Dei. After Michael Carter's 7-yd touchdown, Mater Dei never recovered," said Coach Jaso. Poly crushed its rival with a 32-9 victory. However, in the 2nd playoff game with Fontana, Poly lost to the #1-ranked team in the state, 42-0. The team's dreams ended, but with 6 offensive and 8 defensive players returning next year, the future looks bright!

Even though it was a small team, it didn't stop their great Poly pride. They played every game with the same intensity to score. Clay Cureton stated, "We were young, strong, and maybe inexperienced, but we overcame a lot more than our opponents this season; we were true winners." Most of the JV team members played both offense and defense. The offense and the defense showed large improvements in each game they played. The outstanding victories of this JV squad were scores against Banning and Lakewood. The 1987 JV team's record was 7 wins and 2 losses, losing only to Bishop Amat and Millikan. "Coaches Gelbert and Davis did a good job pulling our team together for a winning season," Tim Kelly added.

Six weeks of summer camp focusing on conditioning can be pretty rough, but the 1987 girls' tennis team knew it was the way to the top. Both teams worked hard, and with returning varsity players, Katie Zeiger and Alison Bloeser, out part of the season with injuries, there was a lot to perfect. "Almost all the seniors had lots of experience," said Coach Miller. "But there was no cohesiveness because of the injuries." Peggy Cheng helped to keep everybody smiling and enthusiastic and was voted most spirited on the team. Varsity was made up of mostly seniors, with junior, Daisy Pablo, and freshman, Hue Lam, the two exceptions.

With skillful playing, JV tied with Wilson for second place in the league. They earned an overall record of 7-3. Anh Nguyen had the best JV record and is looking forward to returning next year.

The varsity team finished with a 5-5 League record and a 6-9 record overall. Victory in a tough, tie-breaking match with Lakewood put them in the C.I.F. Tournament. A wild-card match at Poly in the first round of C.I.F. against Warren High School put Poly out of the tournament and brought the season to a close. The 1987-88 Varsity Water Polo Team.

It's challenging, it's exciting ... yes, that's right ... it's water polo! More and more people are being drawn to this cultish sport. There was more enthusiasm for polo than before, and as enthusiasm grew, so did the team. They went to Hawaii last summer for a tournament to prepare for this season. Excitement among the team members was high. Brian Ward, Shawn Oatey, and Brian Fisk were some of the more spirited players.

Enthusiastically!! That's how Poly water polo started their 6:45 a.m. workouts, practicing for a total of 3 hours a day. James Kennedy recalls, "Workouts were hard, but winning made it worth it." Starting the season with a 7-2 record and ranked in the top ten, the Jackrabbits played their toughest schedule in ten years. They also played with the largest team in recent history. Water polo participated in 3 tournaments: Millikan, South Coast, and North Orange County. The Millikan tournament was the highlight of the season: Poly placed fifth out of thirty-two teams. Finishing the season with a 14-13 record, Coach John Burt commented, "I'm proud to say that we only lost to top ranked teams and performed favorably rather than getting to the top by playing weak teams."

Fast action and initiative was the name of the game for the 1987 volleyball team. With three starting players not returning for the season, varsity Coach Linda Shimidzu projected a disappointing year. But the team proved otherwise. "They did as well, if not better, without the non-returning players. Their performance surprised me," said Coach Shimidzu. Part of their success may have been due to increased team comraderie. Recalling the Mayfield Tournament, Sarah Cao stated, "The tournament made us closer. We learned to work well together as a team." The team was plagued with various injuries. Among the most severe was Erica Thill's sprain that resulted in keeping her from playing half the season. The team ended the season fourth in Moore League after losing a tough game to Lakewood.

Placing second in the Los Altos and El Camino Tournaments, the JV team really showed how to take it to the top. With all the front-row players missing and no substitutes on the bench, the Jackrabbits proved that they had what it took to be the best. JV coach, Diane Hansford, planned a prosperous season, and indeed it was. Poly lost to Wilson but finished the season in second place. "Next year's team is sure to be great," predicted senior varsity star, Joy Bacamante, about the JV team.

BOYS' VARSITY BASKETBALL

B L O C K I N S H O T S

Aloha! The 1987-1988 boys' varsity basketball team heard "Alooha!" Where? Hawaii!!! This winter vacation, the team traveled to Hawaii. They left from L.A. International Airport on December 27 and stayed at the Sheraton Hotel on Waikiki Beach. The team remained for five days and won the consolation championships of a Hawaii high school invitational tournament. When the team wasn't playing, they were shopping on the beach or snorkeling in Hanalei Bay. 12 players, 2 coaches, 1 manager, and 12 boosters, parents, and supporters went on the trip. But enough of the sand and surf of Hawaii. The team played exceedingly well this season, with a few notable players worthy of mention. First, Russell Edney: He rarely played last season, but this season was different. He scored an average of ten points per game in '87-'88, proving his ability to the competition, to his teammates and coaches, and, most importantly, to himself. Then there was Derrick Knowles: with his talent, there is no question as to his future. Finally, there was Terry Nelson: He signed with Cal State Fullerton before the season even began.

The 1987-88 Boys' Varsity Basketball Team

It was a tough season for the Varsity Boys' Basketball Team. With starters Terry Nelson and Russell Edney injured in pre-season, the Jackrabbits got off to a slow start in Moore League. Their first round ended 3-2. Each game was close, and Lakewood was a heartbreaker, which the 'Rabbits lost, 64-57. While the team hoped for a spot in CIF this year, they also had to develop team cooperation. Players like Terry "Bol" Leonard believed that the bench was as important as the starting lineup. In the game versus Jordan, Coach Chris Kinder used his bench to pull out another victory for the Jackrabbits. Shawn Walls commented, "The best part of this season was winning the Jordan game at home."

The season record, 13-12, and the Moore League record, 4-4, were not indicative of the team's abilities. Senior Vince Thornton said, "We would have gone further if 3 of the 5 starters would have played most of the year, but injuries stopped that." Scheduling also proved to be an inhibiting factor. Due to scheduling problems, Poly was forced to forfeit their last two games, which meant that all the team's hopes of extended season play rested on the "do or die" final game with Lakewood. Thornton stated, "To play Lakewood at Lakewood is the hardest game in Moore League. The team doesn't want to lose at home." And they didn't, and Poly's season finished a bit too early for the players liking.

LeRond Williams moves above the crowd for 2 more points to add to his collection.

Terry "Ice T" Nelson hooks it in for a basket.

Jeff Muir grabs, yes, yet another crucial rebound.

Euphemia Neely makes a blocked shot only to get a lay-up.

Melanie Jones gets a pass in the key and shoots for two.

The surprise of the year was the Girls' Varsity Basketball Team. They had an outstanding pre-season record of 12-4 and a string of ten straight wins. During this streak, they stole the Gahr tournament title, came in sixth in the 36-team Artesia Classic, and were once ranked #9 in the CIF Southern Section by the L.A. Times.

Poly devoured Millikan, 73-38, during the Moore League opener. On the other hand, they lost to Compton, 54-56, in the closing moments. But the Lady Rabbits bounced back by defeating Lakewood, 73-68, and by crushing Wilson, 67-43. Jordan gave Poly some trouble but in the 4th quarter the ladies pulled their fourth victory in league. Returning from last year's team were All-Moore League player Euphemia Neely, Aimee Barnes, Michelle Gerry, Miko Montgomery, Candy Johnson, Letoyia Grey, and Adrienne Hughes. Having already been coached by Orlando Larra-cuente for one year, the veterans helped assimilate the new comers: Theresa Bailey, Dionne Vanlandingham, Melanie Jones, and the two sophomores, Nicole Grubbs and Merylinn Cariaga. Michelle Gerry commented philosophically on the team's abilities: "Anyone can lose, but only the strong can survive."

CRASHING THE HOOP

Swoosh! With the sounds of slam-dunking, the Jr. Varsity Boys' Basketball Team came out with a tremendous preseason record of 9-2. Up against 32 other teams, the Jackrabbits, led by Roderick Hannibal, Troy Jones, Melvin Jones, Keith Lester, and Kenny Warren, won the Bosco Tech Tournament. Five straight wins earned them the tournament championship. Keith Lester was named the MVP of the tourney. The Running Rabbits then strung together 9 consecutive victories during preseason.

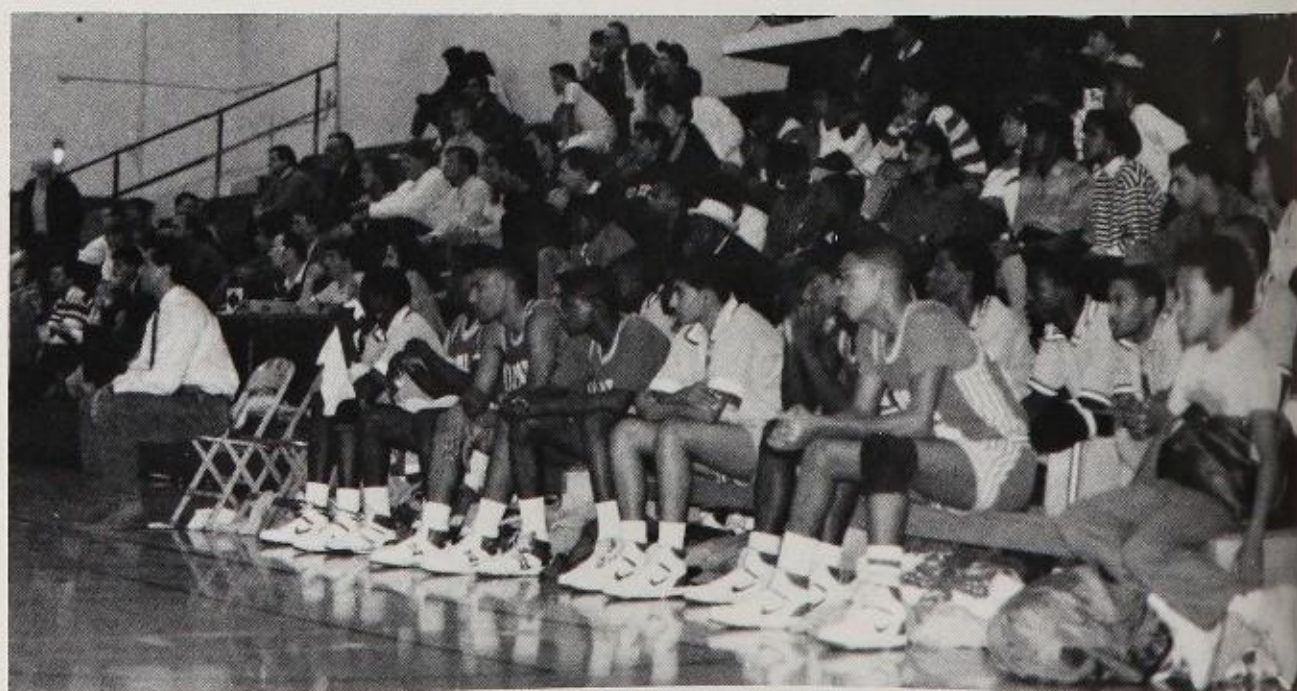

In Moore League, Poly lost a close contest in the first game. According to Coach Mendoza, it was "... due to the worst shooting performance of the season." The Jackrabbits did not give up. Instead, they got themselves on the right track by winning three straight games. Junior Tapera Kagurabadza commented, "We played together extremely well in the closing moments of each game, and I felt that we were very 'def'." The team was made up mostly of juniors, but a few lower classmen on the team gave the coaches hope for some experienced players during the 1988-89 season.

With the performance they displayed this year, we plan to see some serious success in seasons to come.

Demetrius Crawford, Melvin Jones, and Jai Young soar above the rest.

High scoring games were what the 1987-88 Girls' Junior Varsity Basketball team had in mind when they came onto the court. Whether it was at home or away, these Lady Rabbits knew how to put the points on the scoreboard. Sophomore DeAnna Dunn said, "It's a thrill to be a part of the team because the other teams can't score as high."

Roslind Boger (2nd year as the JV coach) built her team around Nicole Thompson, Kiki Thomasson, and Trimeka Jackson.

The JV team had a great pre-season. While losing only two games, they won the Gahr JV Tournament. Pam Davis said, "We set the pace of our Moore League season by winning this tournament."

Moore League was no problem for this team. They went undefeated in the first round of League, and the squad was expected to win the Moore League once again. The team looks to be strong in coming years under the superb guidance of Ms. Boger. As key player, junior Nicole L. Thompson commented, "It was an honor to be a part of the Junior Varsity Girls' team in 1987-88." With that sort of attitude being prevalent, the girls had no trouble taking it to the top as the cream of the Moore League crop.

High achievement was what the boys' soccer team was after. Most of the team members were returning players and they agreed that this was one of the most impressive seasons for the Poly soccer team. The varsity team was coached by Mike Scherba, a new coach at Poly. "The team's strong point is endurance. Even when they're down, they always hang in there," he commented. Coach Scherba introduced a new running program to help increase team speed and to improve the recovery rate. Players really enjoy their new coach. "I think that much of our improvement is due to Mike's excellent coaching ability," stated goalie Kevin Gidden.

The team started on a good note against El Rancho in pre-season. But as Moore League rolled around, they began to suffer from numerous injuries. There were times when they played with no subs on the bench, but Poly's strength and endurance pulled through. Key players on the varsity team were Raman Bridwell, Ken Schneider, and Trino Quintero.

The JV team, coached by Nick Trutanich, also showed much promise, and greatly improved during the season. "I'm confident that next year's team will continue to carry on Poly's winning tradition," said Chad Minnich about the JV team.

Improvement was the key to a successful season for the girls' soccer team. Coach Jose Rodriguez pronounced the team "one of the best" produced by Poly. The new coach coerced the team into long and strenuous practices. Assisted by Coach Linda Hurley, the team concentrated on basic skills and group communication. "The girls had difficulty understanding why it was important to learn basic skills properly," stressed Coach Rodriguez, adding, "It's the key factor in avoiding injuries."

Even though the victories were few, the team worked hard. Their toughest game was against Wilson, where they performed as a team and practiced good communication, but lost. Coach Hurley commented, "The score does not in any way reflect how well the team plays. They're a good group."

The Poly girls made a name for themselves this season. Up until now, the team had been in the shadows. Some of the exceptional players on the team were Dana Bushman, China Kennedy, Jenny Snyder, Amy Settle, and Joy Bacamante., whose humor and wit gave the team an incentive to "play ball." Though winning was important, Coach Rodriguez believed that equal playing time, communication, and hard work were all crucial to developing the feeling of a successful season.

Key pins and awesome bodyslams were evident in a good season by the Poly wrestling squad. With a new coach, Joel Kokis, the wrestling squad began strongly by winning the 8-Team El Monte Tournament. Seven individuals took home first place medals in raising the team record to 4-0. Impressive performances by Alvin Amposta helped the team greatly. He won the individual medal at the 25-Team Invitational held at Rolling Hills High and took second at the Estancia 9-Team competition. Sergio Preciado peaked at the end of the season when he took second at the Rolling Hills tourney and third at Estancia's tournament. Hampered by injuries to senior Luke Arthur and other key players, the team record fell to 7-6-1. The league record was 3-0 with stunning wins over Millikan, Compton, and Lakewood. Early in December, Coach Kokis was noted as saying, "Winning the league dual title and having a couple of wrestlers place in the CIF Tournament were my goals at the beginning of the year. Only time will tell if they will be met. We have a very good chance, however, of meeting those goals." The players express similar attitudes. The team stayed together though they had a lot of options. Mike Kim noted that the whole team expected to pull a few surprises. Amposta stated, "Overall, we had great dedication, even in practice!"

Brian Hernandez takes down an opponent and sets up for a pin.

Zooming to the top in Girls' Swim.

The clock is the toughest thing to beat, but the victory is worth it.

Girls' swim made a splash in spring sports. The new season brought back Cara Swanson, Hether Lynn, and Tracy Rothery. Last season, Cara won two first place races in Moore League, the 200m freestyle and 500m freestyle. Last year's record, 5-10, was a great incentive for a successful season in '88.

Poly swimmers endured long practices, even in the offseason. First semester was easy floating. The girls had morning workouts three times a week and seventh period twice a week. As the season neared, training became more vigorous. 3- to 4-hour workouts daily were routine. Varsity Coach Judith Oatey was prepared to tackle Moore League. Thirteen new varsity swimmers kept the team from flying, but there was enormous optimism for next year. JV Coach Jim Elliot was also happy. "We had good turnout. There was lots of inexperience on the team, but we had a good year."

At the start of the school year, enthusiasm was running low, but, as the season opened, the excitement began.

The intense workouts the thirty girls on swim went through brought them together. As Georgia Kontokanis gushed, "We dieted, worked together, and drowned together."

"George really keeps us going — he pushes us to our full potential," said senior Shawn Oatey of the boys' swim coach, George Wright. Wright inspired the boys to work hard. In October, 1987, he won the Ironman Triathlon for his age-group. The triathlon is a total test of one's physical fitness. The athlete must swim 2.4 miles, cycle 112 miles, and then run 26 miles. It requires an incredible amount of strength and endurance. Coach Wright expects the same effort from his team.

The season began March 1. The boys competed in numerous races, ranging from the 200-meter freestyle, to breaststroke, to the 100-meter butterfly. "We look like we're going to have a real good medley team this year," proclaimed Mike Wells. Promising participants, junior Jon Virak looked good in the breaststroke, and Elliot Riggins, another junior, mastered the butterfly. Strong seniors were Shawn Oatey and Mike Wells in the freestyle events and Ben Burtle in the 100-meter breaststroke. The final meets were held in May at the Olympic Pool in Belmont Shore.

The boys' swim team was comprised of over forty students. "That's a large turnout, and we have a strong team. We should score more points in league than we have in several years," declared George Wright at the outset of another long season.

With the bang of the starting gun, the 1988 Girls' Track Team was off and running. Unlike 1987's CIF Championship team, which was mainly built around seniors Tracey McCray and LaShawn McBride, the 1988 team consisted mostly of sophomores. The leaders of the team were senior Crystal Irving and junior Chinyera Kennedy, both returning from strong performances last season. Irving and Kennedy received All-American recognition in 1987. Also returning was one of the top shotputters in California, senior Melanie Jones. Jones received recognition at the All-State meet in 1986. Outstanding triple jumpers included Dede Stuart and Euphemia Neely. Coach Valentine predicted at the outset of the season, "The season looks very promising, but team success will be dependent on the maturity and development of a young group who will be heavily relied on to continue the winning Poly tradition!" Coach Valentine was right; the girls' track team peaked with perfection!

Poly Boys' Track Team was no surprise this year with so many great returning runners. The tracksters were ready for action in the winter by competing in the Sunkist International. By the track preseason, these running rabbits were ready for the Northridge Meet.

Poly's senior captain, Chris Harris, stated, "There is no other school in league that has the experience like the Poly boys in '88." Experience was glowing with senior stars such as Marquez Pope, Tony McCullough, Chris Harris, and Rufus Young. Returning juniors Mark Johnson, Paul Parsons, Edward Cabs, and Thomas McMullen did exceptional jobs at the varsity level.

The track coaches trained these athletes from mid-November. Mark Johnson commented, "Track is the most difficult sport to train for because you're constantly running, while with other sports you just run to condition yourself." Coach Don Norford specialized in sprints and relays, while Coach Leonelli worked out with the long distance runners. This season, everyone was checking out the '88 Boys' Track Team!

Varsity tennis leaped into a new dimension by naming Cathy Miller as the new boys' tennis coach. Although some may see having a female coach of a boys' varsity sport as a problem, Ms. Miller never perceived it that way. She had coached most of the boys before and was already established as a tennis coach, so being named as boys' coach didn't come as a surprise to her. "I didn't really think of them differently from the girls, even if they didn't wear skirts, shave their legs, and were much taller than me," stated Miller. However, Miller also said that with troops being sent to Honduras, she does worry about the futures of her boys. She felt that the team was strong because there was not one dominant player. Consistent players included: Raymond Vergel de Dios, Tae Song, Cristian Radu, and Ken Schneider.

Damnang Meas, a varsity player, commented, "Coach Miller has worked with us all before. She got us out on the courts and ready for the tennis season, and ultimately, for CIF. There was never an issue on her being our coach." This attitude was reflected by many of the other players on the team. Coach Miller summed up the year by remarking, "The year evolved into a soap opera. A variety of problems had befallen the team and myself. By dealing with these problems and striving to become a more cohesive unit, I expected success as a team."

Defending their 1987 Moore League Crown to keep dominance alive in 1988, Poly's coed badminton team had a slight edge going into the season. Returning singles champ and league MVP, Son Trinh, was joined by his brother, Lam Trinh, 1987 Doubles Champ. In addition Anh Pham, Edwin Cawili, and Son Mai combined efforts on the courts to wipe out Poly's opponents. The girls' team was young but fiery, as proven by Thanh Lam, Dung Vu, Rosie Ganay, and Phuong Truong. Coach Hansford felt this team could surpass last year's successes, especially since they had strong returnees and the desire to succeed.

The Junior Varsity second year Coach, S. Shah, had quite a mixture of talent on his team. Once they blended together, they left an impressive impact on their opponents. Thanh Hoang, Pheng Lay, and Danny Lam helped produce winning strokes in league matches. The J.V. Girls' were led by Daisy Pablo, Dao Linh, and Lisa Correa. The dynamic skills of all of these athletes brought back another smashing season.

Homerun! This was the positive thought of the Varsity '87-88 Boy's Baseball team led by Joe Perruccio. Believing that nothing could go wrong, the varsity team worked hard to show their potential in playing a good game. As they practiced throughout the season, the feelings of togetherness and pride motivated the teammates to victory. With a team of powerful juniors and three returning senior lettermen, Coach Perruccio predicted, "I expect the team to work hard in order to show their inner talents." Indeed, there were losses, but they always played as winners.

Positive thinking was definitely on the mind of the varsity team and it was reflected in Coach Perruccio's style. He was so positive that senior Mark Evans commented, "I hardly know how to act. Coach doesn't yell at me and now I'm forced to be good because I want to be. I'm not used to that. What a change."

This season, the junior varsity team had a fine mixture of juniors and sophomores. There were high expectations for the league title this year. With a direct bearing on the success of the team, J.V. boys have shown that tradition will continue in the years to come. The time and effort put in by the Poly sluggers took them on to many victories.

Spring is a season of growth and potential; so it was for the girls' softball team. Practices began in the early spring with four outstanding starters returning from last year's second place team and fifteen new players adding to the lineup. The desire to win quickly overcame the stigma of being a young team. Poly softball fans anticipated a strong finish in Moore League. Coach Gebert instituted strategy and stress training for the varsity team, while JV Coach Lori Holland provided motivation and inspired both teams to become league contenders. Several key players contributed to this winning image. Nancy Workman proved to be an exceptional catcher and relief pitcher. Kim Hight, 1987 All-League, was a strong role model for her teammates. Eva Morales was the outfield's leader, and sophomore Jeri Green was a highly dependable pitcher.

The JV team had trouble finding a catcher to replace Dardy Kuaea, who injured her right ankle during preseason. Cynthia Hart, Lisa Franco, Nella Poyer, and Angela Guerrero provided the foundation for the squad. Defense proved to be the JV team's strongest asset, stifling opposing offenses. In spite of undefined positions, injuries, and inexperience, the JV squad strived for success.

L.B. Poly Varsity Golf Team

Picture it! Graceful, lean bodies flying through the air! If you saw the gymnastics team practice, your picture would've come to life. The 1988 gymnastics team, headed by walk-on coaches George Cobb and Laurianne Roman, was a fairly new team. There were only three returnees, but that's not to say there was no talent on the team. As Poly's gymnasts strived for first place in the Moore League meets, the experience of the veterans and the raw talent of the rookies paid off. Coach Cobb said, "This team is fresh." No doubt about it, gymnasts know how it feels to be on top, always reaching for that perfect "10!"

Picture it (again)! A metal club flying through the air, hitting an innocent, little white ball. If you were to visit Recreation Park, you would have seen Poly's 1988 Golf Team practicing, led by Coach Nick Trutanich. Burning the course were two of the best golfers in Southern California, William Yanagisawa and James Walker. William, according to Coach Trutanich, "is the best Poly prospect in fifty years." James was a real "par buster." 1988's golf team swung their clubs high, and with finesse to not only shoot par but also birdies and eagles.

Cross-Country, a relatively unheard of sport, requires determination, perseverance, and stamina over long distances. Poly's cross-country team, headed by Steve Leonelli and George Wright, ended fourth in the league, finishing only a fraction behind the Compton team. The team did fairly well considering it had no prior experience. Ninth and tenth graders, and one junior, formed the pack. According to Coach Leonelli, they "improved every week!" He commented, "As a group, they were cooperative and a pleasure to work with." There were no major injuries sustained by the team, only the annoyance of chronic, nagging injuries. However, even those didn't keep the girls from their passion: running long and hard.

Dan Constaniniu commented, "It keeps me in shape; I like to run because it's a fun sport. It also requires a lot of effort and time."

PREPARATION FOR ... FALL 1988

As seniors, we not only worried about classes, but many of us also worried about college next September. Preparing for college wasn't easy, just ask Rashenda Thompson, George Sadjonas, and Lemorris Tyler, especially when they first saw the S.A.T. preparation book. Once the initial shock wore off, hard-core studying began for people like Ana McFarland who studied every free minute she could. Even more torturous than the studying, was sitting for three hours taking "The Test". After "The Test" came the applications. Hours were spent writing and re-writing the college essays. As the year drew to an end, all the concentration, stress, and sweat paid off, as Anika Williams and other mailboxes around the city filled up with acceptance letters.

SENIORS SENIORS SENIORS SENIORS SENIORS SENIORS

EXTRAORDINARY ... ONE OF A KIND

Special! Extraordinary! Unusual! All of these words described us, but none described us better than unique! Like the sign says, "Seniors Rule." Only "We" can intimidate the underclasses and grace them with an occasional "hello." Only "We" can write our own notes for readmits. Only "We" can be International Ambassadors. Only "We" can be Poly North counselors, and only "We" have a day to ditch school. Only "We" have the honor, the privilege, no, the Class to be Jonathan. As seniors, we stood out in a crowd, like Mike Koffman and Sakona Chap.

THE AFFLICTION . . . SENIORITIS

There was a disease at Poly, an affliction that ran rampant through the senior class, causing normally harmless students to do, say, and eat things they normally wouldn't. It was a mind-alter- ing disease and no one was immune. Glen Sandler first felt it take hold when he listened to a Wayne Newton tape. Two of the hardest hit by senioritis, Silvia Olmos and Lila Brown, tried cafeteria food for the first time. Tracy Osborne, equally afflicted, got chummy with Mr. Collins and Mr. Larracuente. Juniors beware: No one can escape the horror!

A VIEW OF THE FUTURE

As our last year at Poly drew to a close, our thoughts of the future came to the front of our minds. For the most part, we view the future as a scary beast to be avoided at all costs. The views, like the students, are very diverse. They range from a "challenge" to a "game". Darlene Daclan, Darlene Rust, and Michelle Licano all had a very nonchalant come-what-may atti- tude. Peggy

Cheng was down-right bored. A lot of us looked to the future through rose- colored glasses — or shades. Whichever the wearer pre- ferred, the future, whether terrific or horrific, is a time to move out and earn money. The future is a fog of complication with no apparent clarity or way out. Ulti- mately, no view beat the cheerful, optimistic grin of Ophelia DelaCruz.

AT THE TOP...

CLASS OF 1988

N I N E T E E N

EIGHTY

Flanked by pals, Paul Parsons moves to the Poly groove.

UNDERCLASSPEOPLE

At lunch, Poly grounds become social grounds for juniors.

Poly underclasspeople find that it takes work and determination to get to the top.

Some sophomores will do almost anything to get to the top at Poly North ... But climbing trees???

A sophomore works hard in class to get the job done and help Poly maintain a #1 image.

Dedication at the booth setup makes the Homecoming Faire the best.

Juniors pull their weight in gold — and green!

SEEING DOUBLE

Have you ever seen a person walking down a hall and then seen that same person walking down that same hall seconds later? Well, you may think that that person is the fastest walker on Earth, but you have really had an encounter with twins! Poly is lucky enough to have many sets of twins on campus.

Almost all of the sets truly enjoy being twins. There is no little brother to follow them around, and no big brother to tell them to go away. Twins have a common bond that never goes away, as with normal siblings. The Caerulea staff surveyed the attitudes of the twins and found many interesting twists. There is a competitive image among them. Juniors Evelyn and Wendy Albor feel that being twins makes life more lively because of the competition in sports and grades. They are the same age and tend to compete for the same things. They generally spend much time together. Some of the odd things that twins do include switching classes and identification. In the case of Jeff and Jennifer Martinek, all of Jennifer's traffic tickets go on Jeff's record! Some of the sillier things twins do include trying to determine who is who in photos. According to most twins, the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. They like having someone there to watch their backs or help them in need. Many twins like to go together to the mall or over to friends' houses. Seniors Dewayne and Deon Williams like to spend free time participating in sports together. Dewayne is on the basketball team and Deon is manager.

Twins don't like it, however, when others mix them up. There are a few stereotypes about twins, such as having mental telepathy or, in the case of the fictitious Corsican Brother, "If you hit one twin, the other will feel it." We all know those are false ... right? Most twins say 'yes' to the common "Did you ever ..." questions.

"Did you ever play tricks on your friends?", "Did you ever switch classes?", or the ever-popular, "Did your parents ever get you mixed up?"

Almost all of the sets feel that it is a definite asset to have a twin. Seniors Steve and Susan Purucker feel that being a twin makes them unique, and each has someone there who is the same age who can empathize with him or her. One disadvantage to being a twin is the identity problem, and another thing that will surely spark a twin tussle is their baby pictures. This always seems to cause confusion because one always insists that he/she was the cutest. But, as most twins will agree, two heads are surely better than one.

87-88 was a truly awesome year! Whether it be in academics, sports, or extra curricular activities, Poly has taken it to the acme of scholastic excellence! There were 15 National Merit Finalists to boast of and league championships in Varsity Boys' Football and Varsity Girls' Basketball! '88 was also the centennial of Long Beach. Taking It To The Top in 1987-1988 may have looked easy, but a lot of work went on behind the scenes, propelling a number one high school even higher. Students put in thousands of hours doing homework and studying for tests. In the hopes of getting to C.I.F., athletes put in hundreds of hours practicing. Faculty worked hard to improve the education of the masses. The grounds staff made Poly High School an asthetic place to attend, and the support staff kept the school running smoothly.

The diligence paid off with fifteen National Merit Finalists, over half a dozen berths in C.I.F. competition, and a helpful staff ready to answer the most formidable queries. In 1987-88, it was clear that Poly had Taken It To The Top!

Special thanks to: Morris Studios for all their time and hard work; Barbara Sappington for helping with the financial end of things; Jostens Publishing Co. for producing another #1 book; Marlo Aquiza and Paul Copeland, for their artistic contributions; and Poly's students and staff, for taking this Caerulea to the top!
